

THE NEW YORK OBSERVER
Real Estate

It's Free to Look: Live In A Cupola!

Kat Stoeffel
November 18, 2010

Choirs of angels.
CORE

Who among us has not dreamed of living inside a cupola? The cupola combines the two most important elements of security (coziness and visibility) and is a rare find in this overstuffed city. This cupola, built in 1897, is fully restored and ready for residence.

Now is your chance, says CORE real estate broker Emily Beare. But be careful: The language of the listing is suspiciously vague ("An opportunity to create," "The combination would include," "many possible configurations") leading us to believe this $17.5 million apartment is CSS (cupola sold separately).

Either way, it's free to look.

SLIDESHOW: 141 Fifth Avenue

