Celebrity real estate maven Maggie Kent is set to take on Season 2 of "Selling New York". The hit HGTV series is returning on January 6 for its second season premiere and expert Maggie Kent with CORE Group New York will be stomping the streets to bring viewers the best of New York real estate.

MAGGIE KENT: YOU NEED THE OPINION OF THE EXPERT

"You can self-diagnose, but you need the opinion of the expert who is out there everyday and has their ear to the ground," Kent said in a past interview on 'Selling New York', the first season. "We really know and understand the market's financial issues, inventory issues, price-per-square foot issues, and how to tackle them," she adds.

CORE EXPERTS RETURN FOR "SELLING NEW YORK" SEASON 2

Citing her expertise in "real access and knowledge of the market" for why she serves a strong purpose both on the show and in the market, Kent will continue her blogging and social media updates via Facebook and Twitter throughout Season 2. Other familiar faces from CORE include Kirk Rundhaug, Tom Postilio and a "colorful new set of assertive, razor-sharp agents from CORE," according to the site.
