Two apartments have been combined to create this sprawling four-bedroom UWS condo

The apartment has impressive views.

Four bedrooms are few and far between in New York City, but this condo, the result of a recent apartment combination, could feasibly sleep four (one of the bedrooms is on the small side.) There are also three bathrooms and a den.

But the views are the real standout: floor to ceiling windows offer striking city vistas, including of the nearby pyramid-shaped Via 57 West building.

Listed by CORE for $3.695 million, the condo is in a newish building (built in 2007). It's three blocks from Columbus Circle and has plentiful amenities, including a swimming pool.

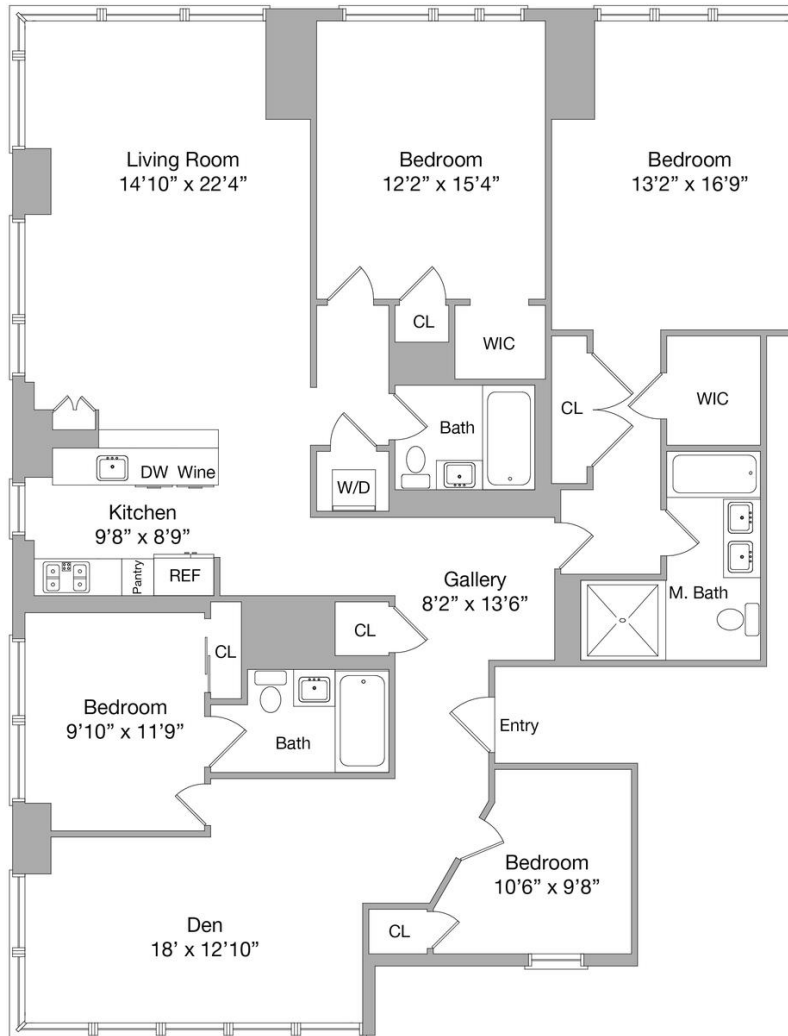

An entrance gallery leads to the living room (see top photo), where a corner position and large windows create a sense of floating above the streets, and red accent walls create a striking color contrast. The den is similarly bright and airy, and the kitchen, which divides the two spaces, has a breakfast bar, marble and limestone finishes, and high-end appliances.

The master bedroom has multiple closets, including a walk-in, as well as an en-suite bath with double sinks. Two of the other bedrooms also have their own full baths. The fourth does not, and may be better suited as a guest room or office.
