For $4.7 million, you can live like a Kardashian.

A 2,427-square-foot apartment that Kim Kardashian and Kanye West once called home is for sale, CORE Real Estate, the brokerage firm handling the sale, told Business Insider. The apartment is in the trendy Soho neighborhood of Manhattan.

West purchased two next-door apartments — the first in 2004 and the second in 2006 — and combined them to create the current unit, a representative of CORE Real Estate told Business Insider. The one-bedroom apartment features a home automation system, custom lighting and sound systems, in-unit laundry, a doorman, two storage units, and access to a shared rooftop deck with panoramic views of lower Manhattan, according to CORE Real Estate. The musician and fashion designer sold the unit to its current owner last year.
