Here's what $800,000 buys in NYC right now

See what you can get in neighborhoods like Prospect Heights, Chelsea, and Harlem

Welcome to Curbed Comparisons, where we explore what you can rent or buy for a certain dollar amount in various NYC neighborhoods. Today, we've found five apartments within $40,000 of today's price: $800,000.

A corner co-op in Chelsea comes with an all-white updated kitchen and a classic-looking subway tiled New York bathroom. The apartment's large bedroom has a substantial sized walk-in closet that provides the bulk of the storage for this space. The many windows in this apartment overlook neighboring gardens, and the apartment is a short walk from the Whitney Museum of American Art. Core has the $799,000 listing. Monthly maintenance runs $1,153.
