

dwell

September 30, 2019

Celebrity Designers Nate Berkus and Jeremiah Brent List Their NYC Pad For $800K

The airy apartment can be even be purchased fully furnished, styled by the designers themselves.

It's not every day that a New York City apartment owned and styled by renowned interior designers is listed for $800,000—which means this light-filled abode in Greenwich Village won't stay on the market for long.

Photo by May Pearl for CORE

Masterfully styled by acclaimed interior designers Nate Berkus and Jeremiah Brent, this one-bedroom apartment is located in a classic 19th-century brownstone and blends historic architecture with chic, contemporary design.

Owned by interior design power couple Nate Berkus and Jeremiah Brent, the one-bedroom residence is nestled in a 19th-century brownstone and located right off Fifth Avenue. With oversized windows that drench the interiors with warm natural light, the home also boasts a number of other historic details, including an original marble fireplace.

Photo by May Pearl for CORE

The home's windows usher in plenty of natural light, while a crisp white color palette creates a calming, minimalist aesthetic. French doors separate the living area from the apartment's master bedroom.

Since purchasing the property, the dynamic duo have decorated it with a mix of vintage finds and pieces from their current collections. As part of the sale, the new owners can also negotiate the purchase of the staged décor. Scroll ahead to see inside more of the apartment, currently listed for $800,000.

Photo by May Pearl for CORE

Like many kitchens in New York City, this one is compact in size yet offers ample cabinetry and built-in shelving. A sleek black table provides a comfortable—and stylish—place for two to dine.

Photo by May Pearl for CORE

The view of the pearly white living area from the bedroom, with the marble fireplace serving as a central focal point. The ceilings, which measure close to 11-and-a-half feet, allow the home to feel spacious and open.

Photo by May Pearl for CORE

Nestled in a 10-unit co-op, the one-bedroom home is located in the heart of Greenwich Village, just steps away from Washington Square Park and Union Square Park. Storage and laundry are also available in the building.

2 East 12th St. 5, New York, NY 10003 is currently listed for $800,000 by Emily Beare of CORE. The next open house will take place on Sunday, September 15th from 12:00 - 1:00 p.m.