Fox host Melissa Francis — who once played Cassandra Cooper Ingalls on “Little House on the Prairie” — is selling her own home.

It’s a far cry from those “on the range”: The Upper East Side condo takes up a full floor in a boutique limestone-and-brick building at 180 E. 93rd St.

The apartment is asking $6.99 million.

The four-bedroom, four-bathroom unit is a roomy 3,000 square feet and comes with a large chef’s kitchen and, of course, a media room.

It was designed and renovated by decorator Celerie Kemble.

Building amenities include a gym, a children’s lounge and private storage.

The listing broker is Core’s Patrick Lilly.
