

August 19, 2019

Helicopter Views Capture New York City's Burgeoning Supertall Skyline

YIMBY user Thomas Koloski recently photographed New York City from above, capturing the prodigious swaths of construction transforming the skylines of Lower Manhattan, Midtown, and beyond. Below are a number of major sites that are taking shape, some of which are nearing topping off and set to be completed in 2020.

Rose Hill, aka 30 East 29th Street, is making vertical progress in NoMad as façade installation takes shape on its main northern elevation. Designed by CetraRuddy Architecture and developed by Rockefeller Group, the 639-foot-tall skyscraper tower should begin gaining prominence over the surrounding low-rise structures by the end of the year. Completion of the 45-story, 123-unit residential building is expected sometime in the first half of 2021.

Rose Hill, aka 30 East 29th Street. Photo by Thomas Koloski