

February 12, 2016

Sexy, Romance-Ready Bedrooms Perfect for V-Day Canoodling

In a city of millions of people and small apartments, finding a spot to spend time with your Valentine can be a bit of a challenge. Not so if you have one of these “sexy” bedrooms—defined for our purposes as a space large enough for two, offering a degree of privacy and, perhaps, a little something extra to set an appropriately amorous ambiance.

With its tall ceilings (overlooking a garden, no less), bay window, carved fireplace and adjacent terrace, this master bedroom within a lovely Anglo-Italianate townhouse at 243 East 17th Street (priced at $15 million) will set a romantic mood.