Colorful Midtown Condo Embraces Modern Style, Wants $1.7M

The fashionable pad comes with a heavy price tag

Within Midtown West's luxury condo building, The Dillon, lies a stylishly-designed one-bedroom, one-and-a-half bathroom. The fashionable pad is part of an open floor plan and features an incredibly spacious living room, white oak floors, a sleek kitchen, and floor-to-ceiling windows that allow for a burst of natural light to illuminate the home. Additionally, the home boasts central air conditioning, radiant heated bathroom floors, a dishwasher, and a washer/dryer unit.

Alas, with a great home comes a great price tag. The lux apartment is asking a hefty $1.695 million. It's a hefty sum but it comes with perks that include building amenities like a fitness center, children's playroom, 24-hour concierge, and a private dining room with a catering kitchen. That and the fact that you'll be residing near Lincoln Center, the MoMA, Columbus Circle, and many more Manhattan hotspots makes it worth a thought.
