Charming Townhouse on Private Washington Mews Asking $30,000/Month

The home is located on one of Manhattan's hidden thoroughfares

Built in the mid-19th-century, the former carriage house has gotten a pretty thorough renovation, with modern upgrades like a gas fireplace, a big chef's kitchen, and a marble-clad bathroom. The exterior is particularly lovely, with blue shutters and planters lining the outside of the home, and a small balcony overlooking a courtyard on the back. There's also a dedicated parking spot in the mews itself.

But charm and privacy doesn't come cheap: the house, a rental, is asking $29,995 per month.
