

Sara Firshein | August 3, 2011

Meet the "Inescapable Technicolored" Apartment of Awesomeness

The tipster who sent this $1.75M NYC listing over to Curbed NY deserves a medal—bringing such things to the attention of the Internet is a mighty worthy feat indeed. A snippet of brokerbabble, which says it better than we can: "This apartment is simply surreal, with a Jules Verne meets Tim Burton sensibility. This home is an incredible journey starting as you walk through the front door, which has been remodeled to resemble a submarine." Read more and view the rest of the photos on Curbed NY.