

May 23, 2014

7 Glamorous Terraces in NYC Homes

*Why schlep to a park when you can sunbathe right on your beautiful terrace?
Here are seven outdoor spaces to suit al fresco lifestyles.*

There's nothing like a great outdoor space to add instant appeal to a New York City apartment, especially if it comes with panoramic views and swanky amenities. Now that warmer weather has finally arrived, we decided to round up some Manhattan and Brooklyn homes with killer outdoor spaces — roof decks, wrap terraces, river views, Manhattan skyline views, outdoor kitchens, irrigation systems and more. Click below if you want seven reasons to pine over al fresco living.

Photo courtesy of CORE

Gorgeous NYC Terraces: 111 Mercer St. #PH, Soho

An area rug with a chevron print brightens up what is already a stunning 1,200-square-foot terrace. Then again, we are suckers for interior spaces that open seamlessly onto outdoor spaces. What's inside: The penthouse triplex has 3,300 square feet, three bedrooms and three baths.

Gorgeous NYC Terraces: East 22nd Street, Flatiron

This duplex penthouse is on the 31st floor, which means the wrap terrace offers some pretty stunning views of both rivers as well as the city. What's inside: 3,600 square feet, five bedrooms, 3.5 baths.

Photo courtesy of Halstead Property

Gorgeous NYC Terraces: Penthouse loft, Chelsea

The wrap terrace in this duplex penthouse spans 68 feet and offers views of Highline Park and the Hudson River. What's inside: three bedrooms, 3.5 baths.

Photo courtesy of Halstead Property

Gorgeous NYC Terraces: 34 North 7th St. #7T, Williamsburg

This luxury condo has a 522-square-foot private outdoor terrace, offering Manhattan and East River views. What's inside: 2,270 square feet, three bedrooms, three baths.

Photo courtesy of Douglas Elliman

Gorgeous NYC Terraces: 111 Wooster St. #PH6E, Soho

This three-bedroom Soho penthouse has a sprawling rooftop garden with a barbecue center and tranquil dining area.

Photo courtesy of Douglas Elliman

Gorgeous NYC Terraces: 450 West 25th St., Chelsea

The backyard of this West Chelsea townhouse is sleek and serene, with a complete kitchen for al fresco cooking and dining. What's inside: 6,600 square feet and five bedrooms, including a full-floor master suite.

Photo courtesy of CORE

Gorgeous NYC Terraces: 233 East 17th St. #PH1, Gramercy

The private rooftop terrace has a barbecue station, wrought-iron fencing and a super cozy sitting area — and at 1,500 square feet, it's two-thirds the size of the condo itself. What's inside: 2,200 square feet, three bedrooms, 3.5 baths.