Real Estate Reality TV Stars Pay Visit to SOMA...

Curtis Nixon (broker, Grumley Haft Kleier Inc. and star of HGTV's "Selling New York"), Maggie Kent (VP/broker, CORE and star of HGTV's "Selling New York") and Ryan Serhant (SVP, Managing Director, Nest Seekers International and star of Bravo's "Million Dollar Listing New York") -- with the view of the Bay Bridge from the 69th floor of One Rincon Hill in San Francisco.

Any fans of Reality Television- and more specifically, Reality TV shows like "Million Dollar Listing New York", "Selling New York"?

Truth be told, I've never even heard of these shows, but late last week, we received word that a number of the shows stars spent some time high above South of Market in One Rincon Hill's 59th Floor penthouses.

The Luxury Marketing Council of San Francisco brought real estate reality TV stars Ryan Serhant (SVP, Managing Director, Nest Seekers International) of Bravo's "Million Dollar Listing New York;" as well as Maggie Kent (VP and broker, CORE) and Curtis Nixon (broker, Grumley Haft Kleier Inc.), both from HGTV's "Selling New York," to San Francisco and they soaked up the amazing panoramic views from penthouses on the 59th floor of One Rincon Hill, along with nearly 100 Bay Area real estate brokers.

Guests enjoyed the stunning views and small bites from Ladies Who Lunch as they mingled with the high-profile New York brokers who have climbed to the top of the most competitive real estate market in the U.S. The reality TV stars shared their insight on selling million dollar properties, New York-style, and how television and fame have helped (or hurt) their business.

If you haven't had a chance to get up to the One Rincon Hill Penthouses, they are quite beautiful. And so are the views. You can check out some photos of their view in a post from a couple years ago.
