Tom Brady and Gisele Bündchen List $17.25 Million NYC Condo

Supermodel Gisele Bündchen and New England Patriots quarterback Tom Brady have put their Flatiron pad on the market for $17.25 million just weeks after they purchased a riverfront home in TriBeCa.

The couple's three-bedroom home at the One Madison tower in Manhattan's Flatiron District, which they bought in 2014 for just over $11.7 million, spans slightly more than 3,300 square feet and has a private elevator, as well as views of the Empire State Building and Hudson River, according to Variety. Their neighbors include media mogul Rupert Murdoch, who owns the top four floors at One Madison. (Mr. Murdoch is the Executive Chairman of News Corp, which owns Dow Jones, publisher of Mansion Global.)

This news comes just weeks after it emerged that the genetically blessed couple paid more than $20 million for a five-bedroom, 5,000-square-foot-home at the Robert A.M. Stern-designed 70 Vestry in Manhattan's TriBeCa neighborhood.

Mr. Brady and Ms. Bündchen— and fellow residents of the 70 Vestry condominium due to be completed in 2018—will have impressive views of the Hudson River and access to a spa suite with an 82-foot swimming pool, separate children's pool, and hot and cold plunge pools.

Earlier this week, Forbes named Ms. Bündchen the highest paid model in the world for the 14th consecutive year. According to the magazine, she brought in $30.5 million last year.
