Next Magazine's celebs of New York reveal their favorite take-out joints.

Tom Postilio is an acclaimed singer of the Great American Songbook with a second career as a real-estate broker. (Follow him on HGTV's Selling New York.) Postilio had an 18-month stint Off-Broadway in Our Sinatra headlining with the Glenn Miller Orchestra, and is appearing at Feinstein's at Loews Regency from May 17–21. Postilio has appeared on PBS' Great Performances, BBC News and CNN's Showbiz Today, garnered a MAC Award and received the Back Stage Bistro Award for "Outstanding Vocalist." He has released two best-selling CDs, What Matters Most and Dream. So what does Postilio pick for takeaway?

"Nobody does comfort food quite like Brooklyn Diner 57th Street (212 W 57th St, 212-977-1957). It brings back the sweetest memories of my childhood and the stories my Dad would tell me about growing up Italian in Brooklyn. Meatball & Spaghetti "della Nonna" ($18.95) is better than, well, Nonna's. (Sorry, Nonna!) I often opt for the scrumptious Chinese Chicken Salad ($18.95). The Triple Layered Fresh Coconut Cake ($10.95) is the best in the world! I believe scientists have proven this to be true. And what's nicer than opening your door to find a waiter in a white coat delivering your heavenly bounty?"
