The 22 Most Epic NYC Apartments on the Market Right Now

Living in New York is insanely expensive--especially if you have an indoor pool, a panoramic view of Central Park and a private rooftop forest.

Even if you don't have the $86 million (well, not right now) to score one of these beautiful chunks of urban real estate, drooling doesn't cost a thing.

So check out these 22 architectural masterpieces, then try to pick your jaw up off the floor.

UNION SQUARE, $6 MILLION

Floor-to-ceiling built-in bookshelves? Swooonnnn...
