

VOGUE

ARTS AND LIFESTYLE

January 29, 2016

Inside J Crew CEO's Tribeca Loft

J CREW is known for its colorful, eclectic aesthetic, so it's no surprise that the apartment owned by the company's CEO, Mickey Drexler, should be just as quirky and covetable. Originally listed last year for $35 million before being withdrawn, Drexler's Tribeca loft is back on the market with a revised price tag of $25 million. Decorated by interior designer Thierry Despont, the apartment occupies more than 6,000sq ft and boasts five bedrooms, three walk-in closets and a custom "billiards area". Step inside the space, here.

