

♠
kate spade
NEW YORK

April 9, 2012

— behind the curtain —

A BLOG FROM KATE SPADE NEW YORK

TOPPING OUR “TO DO” LIST

take an afternoon field trip to an architecture exhibit

APRIL 9, 2012 | COLUMN: IN THE OFFICE

*the skyscraper,
to my mind,
is the only means...
of living in this
age of the machine.*

from “the relation of
skyscrapers to our life”
ralph walker, 1930

we're planning to pack a lunch one day this week and pop over to this cool retrospective on architect ralph walker, whose magnificent art deco masterpieces are all over new york city. you may not know his name, but you'll definitely recognize his iconic buildings in nyc's skyline (think the barclay veseey telephone building and the irving trust building at one wall street).

check it out at 212 west 18th street. admission is free and by appointment only, so call first: 212 335 1800.

<http://www.katespade.com/on/demandware.store/Sites-Kate-Site/default/Page-Show?cid=blog-topping-our-%E2%80%9Cto-do%E2%80%9D-list>